U.S. News Rates the University 4th in the North

The University has been ranked in U.S. News’ Top Ten in the North for the ninth consecutive year.

M. M. McShane, S.J. “We were especially gratified to be recognized for our efforts to make an excellent education accessible to students from families of limited means. "We will, however, not rest on our laurels. Rather, we will continue to build a culture of excellence on our campus, a culture that will continue to shape young men and women of talent for service to the human family."

The north is the nation’s largest and most competitive region. It includes more than 170 schools in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the six New England states. As defined by U.S. News, the “Universities - Master’s” category consists of 572 institutions nationwide that offer a full range of undergraduate programs and also provide graduate education at the master’s level.

U.S. News bases its “Universities-Master’s” reputation on retention of students and graduation rates, faculty resources, student selectivity, financial resources and alumni giving. Data are gathered from reports that institutions complete for various government agencies and from surveys of presidents, provosts and deans of admissions at universities and colleges in the regions.

I believe that our standing in the rankings is rather striking in light of the fact that U.S. News criteria does not take into account many other educational outcomes that bear even stronger testimony to the quality of The University of Scranton; for example, the rate at which our students gain acceptance into graduate and professional schools and our students’ consistent success in garnering prestigious fellowships and scholarships.” Fr. M. McShane added.

In the 2003 rankings, the University rose in its peer assessment ranking and continued its trend of receiving especially high marks for alumni support, retention and graduate rate. U.S. News spotlighted The University of Scranton among schools in the north with the “Highest Graduation Rate.”

In the area of alumni support, 34 percent of University of Scranton graduates continue to support the University through annual gifts, the highest percentage among the region’s top ten institutions. The University of Scranton ranks second only to the College of Holy Cross among the nation’s Jesuit colleges and universities in the percentage of its undergraduate alumni of record who donated money to the University last year.

The U. S. News ranking follows on other recognition the University has received for the quality and value of its educational offerings. This summer, the Princeton Review added the University to its list of the nation’s “Best 345 Colleges,” and Kaplan counted Scranton among the country’s “320 Most Interesting Colleges.”

Last year, Yahoo! Internet Life magazine ranked the University 39th in its listing of “America’s Best Wires Colleges.”

Three international fellows are greeted by administrators of the University. McShane, S.J., University President.

The University Welcomes International Fellows

Maria Veronica de Aguerro, M. artin Zaldivar and Iryna Pyasta come from different countries. They have one thing in common, however: They’re all studying at The University of Scranton as international fellows.

M. De Aguerro, of Mexico City, Mexico, is enrolled in the community counseling program at the Graduate School. Ms. De Aguerro has the distinction of being the first incoming Fulbright Fellow at the University.

The Fulbright Program, was established in 1946 by the late U.S. Senator William Fulbright. The program provides opportunities for students to study abroad in graduate level programs.

Ms. De Aguerro is attending The University of Scranton through a collaborative study-abroad program with Ibero America;

M. McShane added.

I had such a good impression of the program and the University that I came back.”

Remembering 11 September

In this Issue

Students, faculty and staff of the University filled the Byron Complex for a Memorial Mass honoring the victims of 11 September, including five University alumni and 32 relatives of students and alumni who were killed in the national tragedy of 2001. Members of the University’s Concert Band and Concert Choir performed “In Memoriam: A Concord Honoring the Victims & Heroes” on 14 Sept.

The University Welcomes International Fellows (continued from pg. 1) through his fellowship experience at Scranton, Mr. Zaldivar hopes he is "...learning the most important aspects of my career, which will be very accurate in the future as manager of any company in El Salvador." LASPAU is a nonprofit organization affiliated with the University. Originally known as the Latin American Scholarship Program of American Universities, LASPAU designs and implements academic and professional programs to meet the complex social, political, and economic challenges facing the Americas. These fellowships join the University at a time when it is seeking to strengthen its international programs through the creation of a new Office of International Programs and Services. This year, Mr. Zaldivar (originally made up the Soviet Union.) Upon completion of her fellowship, Ms. Pyata will return to her home in the western Ukraine (she hails from the city of Ivaniv-Frankivsk). Her education will help her meet the challenges faced by her country. "The greatest challenge the Ukraine is facing today is its economic situation," she says. "Foreign investors do not even want to try to think about possible investments in the Ukrainian economy because it’s the least stable in Europe. It’s necessary to have young, good specialists with a new way of thinking in economic sciences to move further, to make a normal legislation and tax policy to support business." Diversity Conference to be Held 1 Nov.

The University of Scranton will hold its first bi-annual Diversity and Globalization Conference on November 1st. The theme of the conference is "Education for Justice: Developing Strategies to Build a Richly Diverse Community."

The conference, to be held on the University's campus, will feature presentations by corporate and community leaders, health care professionals, service providers and academicians. Presenters will explore the complexities of diversity and its impact on communities, college campuses, corporations and the provision of health care services.

"The University of Scranton is committed to creating a richly diverse community that is welcoming and understanding of people of all cultures," said Joseph M. McShane, S.J., University President.

"This commitment to diversity and globalization is articulated in the University's Strategic Plan and is actualized through major events such as this conference."

The conference is targeted to business and community leaders; diversity and multicultural coordinators; community, human services and rehabilitation counselors; faculty and college/university administrators; human resources professionals; health care service providers and mental health practitioners.

Keynote speaker is the Hon. Monica McGoldrick, Ph.D., Director of the Multicultural Family Institute in Highland Park, N.J.; a Visiting Professor at Fordham University School of Social Service; and Professor of Clinical Psychiatry at the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School.

Dr. McGoldrick is known internationally as a lecturer and an author of many books. She is one of just five people to be awarded an honorary Doctorate from Smith College School for Social Work.

Conference Sponsors are AXA Foundation, the Area Health Education Center and the Northeastern Pennsylvania Diversity Education Consortium. Co-sponsors are Prudential Financial, Wegmans, The Diversity Coalition and Scranton Tomorrow.

The day-long conference will include a series of workshops on topics ranging from "Creating Inclusive Curriculum and Pedagogy" and "Best Practices for Workforce Equity" to "Cross-cultural Communication in Violence Intervention," "Balancing Work and Home Life" and "D-veloping Awareness of Diversity."

Presenters will include Edie Trep, Education Program Coordinator, Women's Resource Center; Darrell Gray, Director, Human Resources; Proctor and Gamble Ignace Conic, Vice President, Diversity, Prudential; Dr. Ann Harris, Director of Diversity, Illinois State University; Dr. Martha Wharton, Associate Vice President, Academic Affairs and Diversity, Loyola College, M. Ayland; and many more.

The special guest speaker for the Awards luncheon will be Carolyn M. C. M. Usil, Ph.D., Vice President of Diversity, Equity & Global Initiatives of the Association of American Colleges and Universities.

The conference will conclude with a networking reception and a jazz concert to be held in the Houlihan-McLean Center at 7:30 p.m.

Registration is required and conference seating is limited. The cost of the conference is $35 per person. The registration fee for University of Scranton faculty and staff is $25 per person. Corporate registrations are available at a cost of $300 for 10 tickets. Registration fees include a pre-conference colloquium, published conference proceedings and materials, continental breakfast, awards luncheon, networking reception and jazz concert.

For information or registration, contact The University of Scranton, Office of Equity and Diversity, (570)941-6645, or register online at www.scranton.edu/diversity.

Undergraduate Graduate Honors Convocations Slated

The University will hold its second annual Honors Convocations for undergraduate and Graduate School students.

Undergraduate Convocation, 27 Oct.

The Honors Convocation for undergraduate students will be held on Sunday, 27 October. At this event, the President, Provost, Deans and faculty of the University will honor students who achieved the Dean’s List for both semesters of the 2001 – 2002 academic year, as well as those who won other scholastic awards in the course of the year.

Over 500 students will be honored at the event.

"The University is proud to celebrate the achievements of such a large and accomplished group of students," said University President Joseph M. McShane, S.J.

Frank O’Hara Medals will be presented to first-year, second-year and third-year students with the highest grade point average in each of the four undergraduate colleges of the University. The award is named in honor of the late Frank O’Hara who served the University for 53 years in various administrative positions.

Rose Kelly Awards will be given to honor high school teachers who have positively influenced University of Scranton students from each of its undergraduate colleges. The awards are presented to the high school teachers and the students who nominated their mentors.

Award recipients and their families have been invited to a day of events, as follows:

11:00 a.m. Celebration of the Eucharist, Byron Complex
1:30 p.m., College Convocations The College of Arts and Sciences Byron Complex
Kania School of Management

Graduate School Convocation, 23 Oct.

Outstanding students of the University of Scranton’s Graduate School will be recognized at a separate celebration to be held 23 October in the 1942 Room of The Estate.

Frank O’Hara awards will be presented to graduate students who have the highest GPA’s at approximately the mid-point of their master’s degree program. Other awards will also be made.

For additional information, call the Graduate School at 941-7500.
President's Business Council Inaugural Dinner will Aid the University's Presidential Scholarship Fund

The President's Business Council selects further the mission of The University of Scranton through networking and mentoring of alumni and by supporting current students through internship and mentoring opportunities. Council members participate in The University's Executive in Residence Program, which brings alumni back to campus to meet with students. The Council is also helping to establish President's Scholarships for talented students. Full-tuition scholarships for faculty members are awarded annually to top students entering The University of Scranton. Students are selected to receive the scholarship based on their academic excellence, leadership ability and character. The proceeds of the inaugural dinner will benefit the Presidential Scholarship Fund at the University.

Following the New York City group, business councils are being formed in the Philadelphia region and the Washington, D.C. area.

At the inaugural dinner the President's Business Council will also bestow to M. C. Roche the first President's Medal in recognition of the excellence he achieved in his field and the extraordinary compassion he has displayed for others. A graduate of The University of Scranton, Mr. Roche was recognized by The Wall Street Journal as the top headhunter in New York. He was also named "headhunter of the Century" by his peers in a poll conducted by the Wall Street Journal.

In more than 35 years as an executive recruiter, Mr. Roche has worked with hundreds of corporations and has identified top executives throughout the world in numerous industries, including AT&T, IBM, Hewlett Packard, and General Electric. Mr. Roche joined Heidrick and Struggles in 1964, rising through the ranks to the position of President and Chief Executive officer in 1978. In 1981, he moved to the chairman position to devote more than the high-level search work for which he is most known.

Mr. Roche is a member of the Knights of Malta, and on the board of directors of the National Mentoring Partnership, Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America, and The Advisory Council of the Divinity School at Harvard University. He is a former chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University. A cum laude graduate of The University of Scranton class of 1953, Mr. Roche earned an M.B.A. from New York University. He also received an honorary doctor of laws degree from The University of Scranton in 1982.

For additional information, please contact Mr. Galbraith at 570-941-7661.

Bochicchio Inducted Into Northeast Chapter of Pennsylvania Hall of Fame

By Kevin Southard

Coach Owen has served as an assistant head coach of the program for the past year. He was a two-time first-team National Wrestling Coaches Association of America (NWCAA) all-American, a 10-year letterman on the Royal's wrestling team from 1996-2000.

Owen Promoted to Head Wrestling Coach

Brett Owen has been named Head Wrestling Coach, replacing Steve Laidacker, E.D.D., who resigned from the post to accept a full-time faculty position and become the wrestling head coach at Lehigh College in Oviedo, N.C.

The University's Center for Eastern Christian Studies Announces Lecture Series

The University's Center for Eastern Christian Studies announces its 2002-2003 lecture series, which will address Eastern Christian perspectives on married priesthood, beginning at 7 p.m., Monday, 21 October in the lecture room of the center. The featured speaker for the opening lecture will be the Rev. Stanley S. Harakas, Professor of Orthodox Theology Emeritus at Holy Cross Orthodox Seminary, Brookline, Mass. Father Harakas will speak on “Married Priesthood: The Orthodox Experience.” His talk will address the origins of the married priesthood, theology, canon law, historical perspectives, and practical and personal aspects in the life of the Orthodox Church.

On Monday, 11 November, the Rev. David Petras, Professor of Liturgy at SS. Cyril and Methodius Seminary, Washington, D.C., will speak on “Married Priesthood: The Ruthenian Catholic Experience.” The lecture starts at 7 p.m. Father Petras will address the question of a married priesthood from the Ruthenian Catholic perspective. He will discuss the historical perspective of a married priest-bycrate of both East and West in the first millennium, as well as the difficulties of a Byzantine Catholic Church existing within the Roman Communion in the late 19th and 20th centuries.

On Monday, 17 February, 2003, the Rev. Romanos Russo, Pastor of Church of Our Savior, Yonkers, N.Y., and Professor of Russian and Russian Literature at Queens College, N.Y., will discuss “Married Priesthood: the Experience of the Melkite Greek Catholic Church.” The Melkite Church has attempted to reestablish the practice of ordaining married men to the priesthood where the needs of its faithful require. The differing tradition of the Latin Church in the “dispars” causes inevitable sensitivity in this area. The experience of the past and present realities and future perspectives form the main thrust of the lecture.

The Center for Eastern Christian Studies at The University of Scranton serves as a focal point for several activities – academic, pastoral, and ecumenical – all designed to promote knowledge and understanding of the Eastern Christian East. The center houses a Byzantine Rite chapel, a library of 20,000 books and a Rare Book collection, staff offices and a lecture-social hall.

For additional information, call Sister Joan L. Roccasecco, C.S.J., coordinator of the center and adjunct professor of theology/religious studies, at 941-6116, or e-mail roccasecoj3@scranton.edu.

Accounting Symposium set for 23 Oct.

The University’s Kania School of Management and the certified public accounting firm of Parente Randolph PC will sponsor an accounting symposium on Wednesday, 23 October. The symposium will take place on the fifth floor of Brennan Hall.

The program’s primary focus will be accounting and business ethics, and is ideal for members of the business and local communities. A preliminary program entitled “The Accounting Profession and Teaching Accounting in Light of the Recent Financial and Accounting Scandals” will be conducted from noon until 2 p.m. This will include short presentations and an open discussion of various issues, including changes at the SEC, white-collar crime and the accounting industry, and the accountant’s role in fraud detection.

The main program will begin at 3 p.m. Its focus is “The General Public Perceptions and Realities of the Recent Financial Accounting Scandals.” Presenters will discuss the impact of recent changes on non-SEC practice, the Jesuit tradition of justice in the current environment and accounting education, and several other issues.

Dr. Abraham Briloff will speak on “A Rededication to Certified Public Accountancy as a Profession” at 4 p.m. The Emmanuel Sae Distinguished Professor Emeritus at City University of New York’s Baruch College, Dr. Briloff was chosen as one of AccountingToday’s “Top 100 Most Influential People for 2001.” He is the author of The Truth About Corporate Accounting, Unaccountable Accounting and More Debts than Credits. The Burnt Chef: Investor’s Guide to Financial Statements. A panel discussion will take place from 4:30 to 5 p.m., and the symposium will conclude with a social hour.

For further information about the event, contact Dr. Steven A. Solieri, CPA, at 941-4912, or e-mail SolieriS2@scranton.edu.
