INTRODUCTION

Section 1
mission The University of Scranton is a Catholic and Jesuit university animated by the spiritual vision and the tradition of excellence characteristic of the Society of Jesus and those who share in its way of proceeding. The University is a community dedicated to the freedom of inquiry and personal development fundamental to the growth in wisdom and integrity of all who share in its life.

vision The University will provide a superior, transformational learning experience, preparing students who, in the words of Jesuit founder St. Ignatius Loyola, will “set the world on fire.”
strategic plan

The University offers an engaged, integrated and global experience to its students, supporting their career aspirations and helping them to recognize their unique gifts.

The 2015-2020 Strategic Plan expresses the campus community’s hopes and dreams for the University. The Plan, which articulates the University’s proactive approach to the many challenges that face higher education, is grounded in several important planning principles.

Relatedly, the University has embarked on an ambitious and collaborative effort to ensure its financial future through the Comprehensive Resource Review Process. This multi-year effort is guided by core goals that speak to the University’s aspirations both to reduce expenses and to grow revenue.

Tradition

As a Catholic and Jesuit institution of nearly 4,000 undergraduates and more than 1,500 graduate students, The University of Scranton delivers a meaningful education that challenges its students morally, spiritually and intellectually. Learn more about our Jesuit tradition.

We are proudly #JesuitEducated!

"An authentic faith always implies a deep desire to change the world."

— Pope Francis
At The University of Scranton, people have a tradition of opening doors for one another. It’s a custom and a courtesy often observed across campus and it speaks to this institution’s incredibly close-knit community.
Scranton has flourished under the Jesuits and today is among the top tier of nationally ranked universities.

HISTORY

In 1888, The University of Scranton was founded as Saint Thomas College by the Most Reverend William G. O’Hara, D.D., the first Bishop of Scranton. The College was staffed by diocesan priests and seminarians until 1896 and then, for one year, by the Xaverian Brothers.

From 1897 until 1942 the institution, which was renamed The University of Scranton in 1938, was administered for the Diocese by the Christian Brothers. In 1942, the Jesuits were invited to administer the University.

The University has flourished under the Jesuits, growing from what was primarily a commuter college with fewer than 1,000 students to a broadly regional, comprehensive university with a total enrollment of approximately 5,500 students.

During the institution’s 125th anniversary year, in 2013-2014, the University community celebrated its proud past and promising future with a yearlong series of events and activities.
“Since the beginning, Jesuit education has balanced an education in the humanities with a practical orientation to turn out educated people who could make positive, meaningful contributions in the world. The University of Scranton is a broad and deep education, a whole education, that lives up to that ideal.”

— Dan Haggerty, Ph.D.
Associate Professor, Department of Philosophy
Cura Personalis
“care for each person in his or her uniqueness”
Scranton graduates are known for their devotion to the welfare of others and by their special commitment to the pursuit of social justice. Scranton develops leaders in every sense through rigorous preparation in students’ chosen fields coupled with a commitment to educating the whole person, or cura personalis.

Men and Women for and with Others
Inspired by the Gospel of Jesus Christ and the charism of St. Ignatius Loyola, the University offers students opportunities to become women and men for and with others. Service experiences enable students to put their learning and values into practice as they work and collaborate with others, develop interpersonal and leadership skills, and shape lives of meaning and selfless service. These opportunities include ways for students to explore their relationship with God, express their faith in reflective service, work toward the transformation of unjust societal structures, and become immersed in cultures and experiences in the developing countries of our world.

Helping Close to Home and Beyond
From the Leahy Community Health and Family Center to the Center for Service and Social Justice students have numerous opportunities to help those in need, locally, regionally and nationally.

Students choose ornaments inscribed with the ages and wishes of children and purchase gifts for them during the Christmas Toy Drive.

A GLOBAL REACH

"Traveling internationally and confronting poverty in the world is no easy task. But each year dozens of students, who all share a similar passion to serve others, step up to the challenge together."

— Jordan McCauley
Class of 2017
With a full offering of study abroad, travel courses and service experiences, Scranton enables students to engage with different peoples and cultures, making graduates more confident, more well-rounded — and, in the end, more marketable.

The University also prides itself on providing a global experience right here on campus, with 107 international students from 25 countries.

International Outreach

The International Service Program organizes 11 annual trips for students, faculty and staff to serve those in need in developing countries.

“Traveling abroad opens your eyes to a larger world.”

— Maggie Parks
Class of 2016

Scranton students study and serve in more than 40 countries across the world.
RIGOROUS ACADEMICS
The University of Scranton has a rich tradition of academic excellence. Programs are taught in small classes, led by faculty who are experts in their fields. Every aspect of a Scranton education exists to help students succeed. Scholars are challenged and supported here.

The University has accreditation from 17 different accrediting agencies, including recognition by the nation’s most prestigious bodies in the fields of business and management, nursing, computer science, physical therapy, occupational therapy, chemistry and counseling.

Graduate students focus on their fields of specialization under the guidance of top-notch faculty and benefit from the University’s state-of-the-art technology and other resources.

The University of Scranton:

• Provides rigorous academics, grounded in the liberal arts and made practical by real-world, hands-on learning opportunities
• Facilitates experiential learning opportunities that promise immersion and reflection
• Offers students an education that matches the needs of the world, today and tomorrow

Scranton offers 65 majors, 43 minors and a 10:1 student to faculty ratio. There are 29 master’s degree programs and doctoral programs in physical therapy and nursing practice. Undergraduate students of the University with outstanding undergraduate records may apply for early admission to a master’s degree program through either the Accelerated Master’s Degree Program or the Combined Baccalaureate/Master's Degree Program.
College of Arts and Sciences

With 40 undergraduate majors and five graduate programs, the College of Arts and Sciences is the University's largest and oldest academic division. Not only is the college the foundation for Scranton’s traditional liberal arts programs, but it also includes renowned science programs, taught in the cutting-edge Loyola Science Center.

In The Princeton Review’s list of “BEST SCIENCE LABS”，The University of Scranton ranked #4 nationally.

The 200,000-square-foot, Gold LEED certified Loyola Science Center is one of the most dynamic, innovative science buildings in the country.
Kania School of Management

The Kania School of Management is widely recognized as one of the nation’s best business schools and includes three undergraduate programs that are ranked among the top 20 in the country. Offering highly innovative programs, the latest technology skills and a focus on critical thinking, ethics and leadership, the Kania School provides the tools needed to succeed in an increasingly global and technological world.

The Kania School is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB International), the foremost accrediting body for business schools.

A financial markets laboratory located in the Kania School of Management, the Alperin Financial Center simulates a trading floor, complete with an electronic ticker and news and data feeds.
The Panuska College of Professional Studies offers a range of accredited majors in health, education and human services. Rooted in the liberal arts and sciences, academic programs balance theory with practical internships, clinical experience and fieldwork, and required service learning opportunities within the community.
Faculty & Students

Students
The University attracts the best and brightest, with an average high school GPA of 3.38 for first-year students. Many students take advantage of hundreds of leadership opportunities on campus, learning important skills that pay dividends throughout their careers and lives.

Scranton students also find abundant opportunities to apply classroom learning in the real world. Faculty members encourage all students to gain experience and make connections through internships. Students participate in high-level research and regularly collaborate on professional projects within the local community and beyond.

At Scranton, many students choose to enroll in honor programs or pursue prestigious fellowships. Since 1972, 155 graduates have earned a Fulbright or other international fellowship, including a 2017 George Mitchell Scholarship. The University works with students closely to choose a combination of majors and minors that suit them as individuals.

Scranton offers a full — and fulfilling — education that prepares students for successful careers and meaningful lives.

STUDENT FORMATION & CAMPUS LIFE

Twenty-five retreats were offered last year through Campus Ministries. Many retreats are offered for our students at the University’s Retreat Center on Chapman Lake, which is 12 miles from campus.
This is a 24/7 college experience, where students join together to take part in a full calendar of activities and more than 900 events. They get involved in one or more of the University's 80+ clubs and organizations.

Inspired by the institution's Catholic and Jesuit identity, Student Formation and Campus Life challenges students to recognize their unique gifts and talents, reach beyond their perceived capabilities, develop a restless desire for excellence grounded in gratitude, and discover and embrace who they are called to be.

The University's Office of Campus Ministries offers students numerous opportunities to explore the deeper questions of life, no matter their faith tradition. Through Spiritual Formation Programs, Campus Ministries seeks to inspire and instill in students a love for themselves, others and God as they integrate adult faith formation into lives of service for others.

“Scranton really helps students to find their passion, and it's why nearly everyone on this campus is involved in at least one or two things.”

— Christopher Kilner

Scranton fields 19 intercollegiate teams at the NCAA Division III level, competing as members of the Landmark Conference. The Royals have a winning tradition — both on and off the field — with three national championships, 156 conference titles, 60 All-Americans, 32 Academic All-Americans and 16 recipients of the prestigious NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship.

Scranton students are active — more than 2,000 are involved in recreational sports and intramurals. With 23 intramural sports, 15 club sports and our new, 14,000-square-foot fitness center, students find plenty of ways to stay competitive and fit.

Scranton was ranked as one of the “50 Fittest Colleges in America” by the Active Times and among the 26 “healthiest” colleges in the U.S. by Greatist.com.
University of Scranton South Side Athletics Campus
The University recently announced plans to invest $14 million to upgrade athletic fields and facilities in South Scranton. Plans include NCAA regulation baseball and softball fields and a multipurpose field that meets NCAA standards for soccer, lacrosse and field hockey. Plans also include a community basketball court, a children’s play area, field house, bleacher seating and parking.

— Daniel Mahoney, Ph.D.
Professor, Accounting Department
Scranton’s 58-acre hillside campus is located in Pennsylvania’s Pocono Northeast region, an area rich in natural scenic beauty. The campus is located in the heart of Scranton, a community of 75,000 within a greater metropolitan area of 750,000 people.

The University’s reimagined campus can be seen from any direction. Scranton has recently invested more than $240 million in new construction and campus renovations. In fact, the campus community has a hard time not wearing out the term “state-of-the-art” when describing recent construction projects.

In the past decade alone, the University has added:

- Leahy Hall, which houses the departments of physical therapy, occupational therapy and exercise science; dedicated in September 2015
- The Loyola Science Center, one of the most dynamic, innovative science buildings in the country
- The DeNaples Center, the hub and heart of social life on campus
- Pilarz and Montrone Halls, home to nearly 400 upperclass students and a fitness center, convenience store and dining area
- Condron Hall, a sophomore residence hall standing seven stories high

The renovations the University has completed — more than 50 projects since 1984 — include the Dionne Campus Green, a football field-sized green space that serves as a spectacular campus gateway to the DeNaples Center.

Most recently, the University community raised flags on the new Commons Flag Terrace and announced plans to invest $14 million to upgrade athletic fields and facilities in South Scranton.
Scranton was ranked among the top 10 "Best Cities to Raise a Family"
— Forbes
Scranton is the sixth-largest city in Pennsylvania and a vibrant college town, home to five colleges and universities. Known as the Electric City — the first U.S. city to have an electric-powered streetcar — Scranton today finds its energy from many other sources, namely popular coffeehouses, eateries, festivals, minor-league sports teams and a well-known Office, Dunder Mifflin.

The University and the City of Scranton are forever intertwined. Just as it was fact more than 125 years ago, it remains that way today — a certainty in which Jesuit founder St. Ignatius would revel.

On the heels of its 125th anniversary celebration, the University is examining its connection to the city through a new State of Scranton seminar series that engages faculty, staff and students in both the city's challenges and its progress.

Many efforts in the city to attract new jobs and increase workforce development opportunities, which is why the University chose to recently focus on what constitutes a “living wage” in Northeastern Pennsylvania, the subject of a new study.

This is just one example of the many ways in which the University and the City of Scranton work together toward change.

As the maxim goes, “Bernard loved the valleys, and Benedict loved the hills, Francis the towns, Ignatius the great cities.”

For St. Ignatius, cities were the site where transformational education best takes place, and it is here in Scranton that the University’s students learn, engage and grow.

The University of Scranton is conveniently located in the heart of downtown Scranton.
UNIVERSITY ADVANCEMENT

The division of University Advancement engages alumni, parents, students and friends in a lifelong relationship with the University and generates private philanthropic support from these groups in support of the University’s mission and its strategic plan. Through their generosity, alumni, parents and friends support student scholarships, capital projects, academic initiatives and Campus Ministries.

Under the leadership of the new President, plans for a future comprehensive campaign in support of the new University strategic plan will be finalized for presentation to the Board of Trustees in 2018.

Serving, Giving, Caring for Others: It’s the Royal Way.

[scranton.edu/advancement]
GOVERNANCE

The Board of Trustees at The University of Scranton serves an institution that is founded in the Catholic, Jesuit tradition, committed to scholarship, community and service. The primary duties of the Board include the oversight of the institution’s budget, the establishment of fundamental institutional policies and the selection and appointment of the University’s President. The Board also sets overall directions and institutional objectives for the University. Much of the Board’s work is addressed via standing committees: Audit, Compensation, Education, Enrollment Management/External Affairs, Finance, Governance and University Advancement.
Organization Chart
The University of Scranton has continued to enjoy financial stability through challenging times in private higher education. For several decades, through prudent financial management, the University has shown strong operating surpluses each fiscal year. The heart of our financial stability lies in a multi-year strategic financial plan, referred to as the Comprehensive Resource Review, and ongoing fiscal discipline shown by campus leadership in building balanced operating budgets each fiscal year.

The University was assigned an A- rating with a stable outlook by Standard & Poor’s in its most recent review in June of 2016. They stated: “We assessed the University’s financial profile as strong, with consistently positive operating performance and good financial management policies.” Their report included the following specific comments related to the rating:

- Positive operating performance on a consistent basis
- Average pro forma maximum annual debt service burden of 4.8 percent of fiscal year 2015 operating expenses
- Low financial resources for the rating category with expendable resources of $160.3 million representing 72.5 percent of operating expenses and 95.7 percent of pro forma debt at fiscal year-end 2015
- Reduced operating margins within the past three years

Gross student tuition and fees and room and board account for 95 percent of University revenues each year. Close collaboration among finance, enrollment management and academic affairs has allowed the University to continue to invest in priorities as defined through collaborative campus planning processes. The freshman discount rate for the class entering in fall 2016 was approximately 46 percent. The University’s endowment value was approximately $170 million as of September 2016.

As referenced in the principles of the University’s latest strategic plan, this institution is committed to keeping a Scranton education affordable. Its long-term financial plans call for tuition and room and board increases of less than 3 percent as the University looks to the future. Efforts through the Comprehensive Resource Review process across campus will focus on growing revenues to support the University’s needs while also looking closely at operating expenses to consistently meet institutional goals and aspirations.
Section 3

PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH
The Role

Reporting to the Board of Trustees, the President will serve as chief executive officer of the University, responsible for all aspects of its administration. The President is an ex officio member of the Board and acts as a liaison between the University community and the Board of Trustees. The President is responsible for leading the University, implementing all Board policies, keeping the Board informed on all appropriate matters and consulting with the Board in a timely manner on matters appropriate to its policy-making and fiduciary functions. The President will also serve as the University's key spokesperson.

Following are members of the President's Cabinet:

- Senior Vice President for Finance and Administration
- Vice President for University Advancement
- Interim Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs
- Interim Executive Director for the Jesuit Center
- General Counsel
- Chief of Staff
- Vice Provost for Enrollment Management and External Affairs
- Associate Vice President for Human Resources
- Vice Provost for Student Formation and Campus Life
- Associate Vice President for Information Technology and Chief Information Officer

Priorities

The next President will be a visionary educator, strategic planner and inspirational leader who will embrace the traditions, values and character of The University of Scranton. The ideal candidate will have a distinguished record of intellectual achievement and success as a senior administrator such that s/he will be well positioned to lead the interpretation and implementation of the current strategic plan: scranton.edu/strategicplan. Following are the main themes of The Scranton Plan:

- Engaged. Implement diverse opportunities for students to be engaged in transformative and reflective academic, social, spiritual and service-oriented experiences that are intentionally designed to develop their knowledge and skills while challenging them to be men and women of faith and service to their communities or “men and women for and with others.”

- Integrated. Deliver transformational educational experiences through integrated teaching, learning, scholarship and formation opportunities across disciplines, programs, and co-curricular experiences, within a culture of innovation, assessment, and continuous improvement.

- Global. Provide opportunities for students to be immersed in academic, moral and spiritual learning that cultivates reflection, discernment and action in a global context and within a multicultural learning environment.
The next President of The University of Scranton will be a visionary and collaborative leader with the ability to promote the University's Catholic and Jesuit mission. S/he will lead a strong senior leadership team and a vigorously engaged faculty, administration, staff, student body and alumni population. The President, working with the Vice President for University Advancement, the Board and other volunteer leaders, will dedicate approximately 40 percent of his/her time to engaging and cultivating those individuals who have the capacity and inclination to contribute philanthropic support at the leadership gift level. In addition, the ideal candidate will excel in the following areas:

Inspirational leadership

- Demonstrated commitment to the University's Catholic and Jesuit mission;

- Ability to knowledgably articulate and model the mission to all internal and external stakeholders;

- Ability to embody the Ignatian principle of cura personalis, manifested by: a visible, pastoral and inspirational presence on campus; a respect for the concerns, circumstances and needs of the campus community; and an approachable and outgoing demeanor; and

- Demonstrated academic credentials and record of academic accomplishment.

Managerial acumen

- Increasingly responsible experience managing a complex organization, including the successful development of faculty and staff;

- Communication style that engages all constituents, including superb listening skills;

- Financial acumen, including the ability to allocate resources in an effective and fair manner, in alignment with an institution's strategic goals;

- Established track record as a creative fundraiser with excellent communications skills and the drive and vitality to promote and advance the institution; and

- Budget expertise that combines a working understanding of finance and the realities of tuition dependency.

Organizational capacity building

- Ability to inspire trust and build cooperative relationships across stakeholders;

- Evidence of working collaboratively, transparently and productively with all constituencies;

- Demonstrated ability to motivate faculty and staff by creating an empowered, collegial work environment, ideally including some experience with unions; and

- Track record of fostering a culture of inclusive excellence and diversity in the recruitment and retention of outstanding faculty, staff and students.
