Royal Warriors Support the Community
By Cadets Alicia Schroeder & Emily Rainey

On the evening of Friday, 03 December, the ROTC Detachment at King’s College hosted a Dodgeball Tournament in support of Operation Feed a Friend. The tournament was a success as a total of fifteen, six person teams competed in the event. With a $5 per person entry fee, a 50/50 raffle, and concessions, the Cadets were able to raise $474. The tournament was formatted so that the winning team received 20% of the entry fee collections. The tournament was won by the University of Scranton’s Army ROTC entry, School Yard Bullies, who generously gave the winnings back to the charity collection. The earnings were spent on groceries for the St. Vincent De Paul Soup Kitchen. Kitchen management was thrilled to receive the donation.

From 25 November through 03 December over forty Cadets from the Battalion contributed to a worthwhile holiday cause. The Giving Tree Project provided much needed clothing items, special needs gifts and other toys to Scranton’s neediest children during the holiday season.

Participating Cadets chose ornaments, each representing a child in need, from the tree located in Rock Hall. Each Cadet bought a gift ranging in price from $20-25 and returned it to the tree. After all the gifts were collected, an estimated value of the donations totaled $900. The Battalion was honored to be a part of this worthy charity event and overwhelmed by the generosity of Cadets and Cadre.

On Saturday December 11, 2010, forty-one Cadets from the Royal Warrior Battalion participated in the pre-game ceremony to start off the 111th Army v. Navy Game. The game took place on the turf of the Philadelphia Eagles at the Lincoln Financial Field in the city of Philadelphia. This annual meeting is one of the biggest and oldest rivalries in sports. Over 180 R.O.T.C. Cadets joined forces with West Point Cadets for the annual march-on prior to the game. After the march-on, Cadets sat with the West Point Cadets to cheer on the fellow future officers of the Army football team.

The Royal Warrior Battalion departed from the University of Scranton at 5:15 am, arriving at the stadium at 7:30 am; the Cadets joined other members of the Freedom Brigade for final inspections before coming together with the West Point Cadets.

Distinguished guests of honor in attendance at the game included the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Admiral Mike Mullin and Army Chief of Staff, General George W. Casey. Also in attendance was the only living Medal of Honor recipient from the War in Afghanistan, Staff Sergeant Salvatore Giunta.

Over the past two years, the Army has struggled to put up points against the Navy team, however with a more experienced team this year the Army team was able to put up a good fight against Navy. Down two touchdowns at the end of the first quarter, they bounced back and brought the game within three points.

In the second half, the team managed to score another touchdown and stop the Navy on numerous occasions, including an interception in their own End zone. However, in the end, Army fell short on points to beat Navy.

After the game, Cadets returned to the bus for the journey back to Scranton. The Cadets enjoyed this opportunity to represent the Battalion and Brigade on national television. MS III Cadet Jenna Caserta said “I was proud to represent the Royal Warrior Battalion at the game. It was a great opportunity for R.O.T.C. and West Point cadets to find out more about each others experiences throughout their college years, especially the military aspect of it.”

And for next year, GO ARMY, BEAT NAVY!!

The Royal Warrior family recently said farewell to Captain Randy Agnew as he packed his rucksack and departed for Camp Arifjan, Kuwait. Captain Agnew served on the Royal Warrior Cadre the past two years, overseeing instruction and training for both MS I and MS II Cadets.

Captain Agnew played a significant role in helping MS Is and IIs integrate into the Cadet Battalion and progress into the upper division courses of the program.

A veteran of combat deployments to Iraq, Captain Agnew brought a great deal of knowledge and professionalism to the Department.

Captain Agnew will be assigned to Camp Arifjan for the next twelve months where he will help oversee the withdrawal of equipment and supplies from Iraq. He plays a critical role in helping ensure that those items are sent forward to support the conflict in Afghanistan or returned to installations in the United States.

The Royal Warrior Battalion, both Cadets and Cadre, wish Captain Agnew the very best as he begins this new assignment.
The Royal Warrior Battalion Ranger Challenge Team and the campus Starbucks store recently partnered to collect items to send in Care Packages to U.S. Troops overseas this holiday season. With generous donations from across the campus community and Starbucks over three full duffle bags of items were collected for those serving in Iraq and Afghanistan. MS IV Cadet and Ranger Challenge Team Captain Chris Meade and Ms. SheriLynn Murray of Starbucks are to be commended on their hard work in planning and organizing this event.

MS II Cadets Selected to Participate in Cadet Command Cultural and Language Training Programs

Congratulations are in order for MS II Cadets Sean Cogan and Carina Hanks who were recently selected by U.S. Army Cadet Command to participate in the Cultural and Language Training Program. The program is designed to afford Cadets a thirty day deployment to foreign nation where they, along with 20 to 30 ROTC Cadets from across the country, have an opportunity to immerse themselves in local culture and begin to learn some of the basics of the local Language.

The initial CULP pilot program was tested last summer, as about 200 Cadets deployed to some forty countries for training. This year the program has been expanded to allow nearly 600 Cadets from ROTC programs across the nation to take part in this critical professional development opportunity. Cadets are selected to participate in the Cadet Command CULP program based on their GPA, previous foreign language training, performance in Military Science Courses and the recommendation of the Cadre.

Cadet Carine Hanks will deploy to the nation of Indonesia this Summer. Here she will have the opportunity to visit local high schools, universities, government offices and hospitals, as well as interact with local families and students.

Cadet Sean Cogan will travel to Fort Benning, Georgia where he will enroll in the U.S. Army’s Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation. Here Cadet Cogan will attend classes covering a wide range of topics along with fellow Cadets from the nation of Columbia’s military academy, as well as students from other South and Central American countries.

Congratulations to the following Cadets who achieved a score of 300 points or great on the Fall Semester Record Army Physical Fitness Test. Well Done Royal Warriors!
