Assessment: Among those students who said that their understanding of academic honesty did not change after taking the tutorial, many (particularly graduate students) commented that it was a good reminder or that it reinforced what they already knew. One undergraduate student remarked that “It forced me to actually read and understand the Academic Code of Honesty.”

* Beginning with AY 2012-2013, this question changed in the undergraduate survey only to:

If your understanding of Academic Integrity has changed after completing this tutorial, please comment as to how it changed.

Assessment: Changing the question in the undergraduate tutorial led a significant portion of students to “skip” the question. As we look to the future, we intend to revise the survey and create two questions—one that would require a yes or no answer, and one that would allow students to explain their rationale.
