University Welcomes Largest Class in School's History

"The University of Scranton was absolutely, positively my first choice of schools because my dad had told me so many good things about it."

Edward J. Kausmeyer, son of Edward E. Kausmeyer '71, G'82

The University welcomed the largest incoming class in the school's 113-year history during Orientation weekend, 25 and 26 August. The freshman class includes 1,012 full-time freshmen; 58 transfers to the undergraduate day school; more than 85 students in Dexter Hanley College, the University's division for adult and part-time students; and more than 185 students entering the Graduate School.

The entering undergraduate students were drawn from more than 3,800 applicants and over 36,000 inquiries. The freshman class has an average SAT score of 1115. The class includes one National Merit finalist, 17 valedictorians and at least eight salutatorians. National Merit finalists are ranked in the top one percent of all high school students nationwide.

Many of the valedictorians and salutatorians represent local high schools including North Pocono, Bishop Hannan, Valley View, Riverside, Delaware Valley, West Scranton, Honesdale, Forest City, Lackawanna Trail, and the Triboro Christian Academy. Most of these students are enrolled in the University's pre-med program, which has a long-standing history of performance above national averages.

Thirty-five of the incoming freshmen are children of University alumni. Among this group is computer science major Edward J. Kausmeyer, who is also a valedictorian of Delaware Valley High School.

"The University of Scranton was absolutely, positively my first choice of schools because my dad had told me so many good things about it," Mr. Kausmeyer said of his decision to attend the University.

Echoing his son's sentiments, Edward E. Kausmeyer '71, G '82 said, "I am sure my son will love it (The University of Scranton). You couldn't talk him into going anywhere else."

Incoming students represent 18 states. Students joining the University's community this year come from as close as the Hill Section of Scranton, and as far away as New Hampshire, Vermont, Florida, Texas and California.

The University enrolls approximately 140 students from 47 countries, many of whom are Graduate School students. The University of Scranton has been educating international students since 1946. In the past five years, undergraduate and graduate students from 55 different countries have studied here. This year, incoming students represent 12 countries, including Ireland, India, Taiwan and Mexico.

Of the incoming, undergraduate, full-time students, 23 percent are from local high schools. The remaining 32 percent will live in the University's residence halls.

This class also includes the first students enrolled in the University's new undergraduate degree program in Media and Information Technology and a new master's degree program in early childhood education.

Eleven departments have moved into the newly renovated O'Hara Hall. These and other moves throughout the summer involved about 15 percent of the University's staff and faculty.

The University on the Move

Not long after students moved out of their residence halls in May, another major move took place on campus.

Actually, it was a series of moves involving about 15 percent of the University's staff and faculty. In all, the moves involved 21 departments and about 160 people.

"This was the busiest summer by far that I can remember for moves and projects," said James Devers, Director of Physical Plant.

He credits advance planning with departments for the smooth transitions. "We experienced a few glitches, but nothing that we couldn't handle."

The completion of renovations to O'Hara Hall made it possible for 11 departments to move into new digs in this six-story building. These moves, in turn, made it possible for other departments to relocate to the space vacated by those who moved to O'Hara.

Another key element of the moves was the need to vacate The Gallery, which will be demolished this fall. In its place will be a central "green space" on campus, as recommended in the University's facilities master plan.

The large incoming freshman class created the need to make some adjustments to Nevils and Driscoll halls for student residences. The changes included relocating the Office of Residence Life to a recently acquired home on Quincy Avenue.

In late August, the Exercise Science and Sport Department moved to newly-constructed space in the basement of the Long Center.

And there's still another move on the horizon. In October, Printing Services will relocate to a newly constructed building on Jefferson Avenue.

If the office shuffle has left you wondering "who's where," you're not alone. Accordingly, The Scranton Record is pleased to provide a directory of recently relocated departments. See page 2.

Art Gallery Moves to Hyland Hall

The University Art Gallery has moved from its former residence in The Gallery building on Linden Street to the fourth floor of Hyland Hall at the corner of Jefferson Avenue and Linden Street.

According to Gallery Director Darlene Miller-Lanning, Ph.D., the University Art Gallery's new locale boasts a number of improvements for the display of artwork.

"There are major improvements in both the quality and quantity of exhibit space," said Dr. Miller-Lanning.

The new exhibit space is roughly double the size of the old. The new space also features a wall of windows and a cathedral ceiling, both of which add to the ambiance of the exhibit environment. Movable walls allow displays to be arranged in different shapes.

"Other features of the new location are the adjoining workshop and classroom space for lectures and workshops that complement exhibits," said Dr. Miller-Lanning.

The University Art Gallery in Hyland Hall will open Sunday, 9 September, with its first exhibit, "Working Through the Past: Paintings by Samuel Bak." For information, call 941-4214.

A Look Behind the Scenes of Orientation

Long before the first wave of freshmen arrived on campus for Orientation Weekend, hundreds of University employees and students were hard at work preparing for the class of 2005.

And there was a lot for which to prepare – 1,012 freshmen and their families to be exact.

That's 1,012 Royal Cards and Information Resources packets. 879 move-ins for resident students. Parking stickers for commuting students. Lunch and dinner for the entire freshman class and their families. And an outdoor Mass for about 1,400.

If you've ever wondered what goes into preparing for an event like this, read on.

Orientation Aides – the "purple people" who assisted with move-ins – met regularly since May. Orientation Co-directors Liz Wilson and Kevin Peel met several times a week since May, as well as throughout much of the year. The 130 Orientation Aides were joined by about 20 ROTC students, 100 student athletes, 20 upper class resident assistants and 10 members of Campus Ministry – all of whom volunteered their time to assist with Orientation. Total student volunteers: about 280.

A core group from the Orientation planning committee met weekly throughout the summer. This group consisted of Orientation Chairs Mary Engel, Ph.D., Director of the Office of Fellowship Programs, Patricia Vaccaro, Director of Collegiate Volunteers, and Kent Drake-Deese, Assistant Dean and Director of Residence Life; Reuban Rodriguez, Ed.D., Dean of Student Life; Lisa Bealla, Secretary, Office of Student Life and Leadership; and Ms. Wilson and Mr. Peel.

The planning committee was assisted by the tireless efforts of representatives from Public Safety, Physical Plant, the Office of Student Life, Campus Ministry, the Registrar's Office and Dining Services.

And speaking of food ... it took about 90 food service employees to prepare and serve meals for freshmen and their families. At lunch, they served up about 1,200 hoagies, 1,000 hamburgers and 600 hot dogs. Dinner involved over 1,000 burgers, 750 hot dogs, 1,200 chicken baskets, 1,200 brownies, 46 gallons of fruit salad and 50 gallons of pasta salad.

What about that music you heard in front of the Long Center? It was presented by 25 returning members of The University of Scranton Jazz Ensemble, who rehearsed intensively for two days prior to Orientation. Bright and early Saturday morning, they met in the rehearsal hall at the Houlihan-McLean Center to begin packing instruments, equipment and music, finalizing the call-list, loading up vehicles and heading for the Long Center for another hour of set-up.

Throughout Orientation weekend, there were chairs and tables to be set up and taken down, and a 50-acre campus to be cleaned up by about 100 staff members of Physical Plant.

In one corner of campus, for example, the Freshman Patio was transformed into a location for a late afternoon Mass. Stage sections, an altar and pulpit – and even a piano – were moved from the Long Center to the outdoor patio. There were chairs for 1,200 (the rest of the crowd sat on the grass), water bottles for 1,500 and communion for 1,400. Ten priests celebrated with University President Joseph M. McShane, S.J. There were also 20 student eucharistic ministers, acolytes and banner bearers, two student lectors, 40 musicians and 30 Orientation Aides acting as ushers.

Safety is always a concern when so many people are on campus at one given time. The Office of Public Safety spent considerable time and effort preparing for every possible emergency. At any given time on 25 August, there were eight Public Safety Officers on campus. Two Police Officers from the Scranton Police Department were stationed on Mulberry Street for the day.

An extra measure of precaution was added this year with the purchase of defibrillators for all University Public Safety vehicles.

Now that Orientation is over for this year, all of these people can sit and relax for a very long time. Right?

Wrong. Plans for Orientation 2002 are already under way.

University Spearheads Partnership to Assist Businesses

A nearly $1 million U.S. Small Business Administration project announced 9 August at the University will provide the tools to leverage public resources in ways that help small- and medium-sized businesses use technology to compete more effectively.

Through a $983,000 grant, the University will establish the Electronic Business Technology Distribution Center Network together with partners Georgia Tech Research Corporation, Atlanta, Ga.; Getronics Government Solutions, LLC, San Antonio, Texas; and CAMP, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio.

"There are hundreds of agencies and organizations across the country that concentrate on helping small- and medium-sized companies to engage in electronic business," said U.S. Rep. Don Sherwood, who secured the funding in an appropriations law passed last year. "Through this project, we want to begin creating a network to leverage these resources in ways that make their work more cost effective and efficient."

Under the grant, the partners will establish a network to provide information and resources targeted to meet the electronic-commerce needs of small- and medium-sized businesses, minority- and women-owned businesses, and small agricultural enterprises. The one-year project will gather demographic information and assess the electronic-commerce, training and technical needs of small- and medium-sized businesses through contact with selected service providers across the nation.

"Through our Electronic Commerce Resource Center established in 1991, The University of Scranton has been at the forefront of the U.S. government's efforts to help small- and medium-sized defense contractors compete in the information age," said Joseph M. McShane, S.J., University President. "The project we announce today logically extends that work and experience to businesses competing in all sectors of the economy."

The project will also include: researching and designing a way of distributing electronic-commerce and electronic-business technology to service providers; assembling electronic-commerce outreach, training and technical materials for use by selected federal agencies and service providers; and gathering statistical and anecdotal data to help develop innovative e-business technology for small- and medium-sized businesses.

Resources assembled through the network will help companies sort through the complex operating and technology standards of suppliers, electronic marketplaces and global commerce.

APS Chapter Wins Award

The American Psychology Society Student Caucus (APSSC), The University of Scranton's local chapter of the American Psychology Society, has received the 2000-2001 Chapter of the Year Award. In a competition held each year, the APS presents the award in recognition of excellence in promoting psychological science to students.

The University's student chapter earned the honor as a result of its efforts to provide professional-growth opportunities for students and to "Give Psychology Away." Some of the presentations and events that the Scranton APSSC has implemented are What's New This Month in Science, Medicine and Technology, community-service projects, and outreach programs to regional primary and secondary schools. In 1984, the APSSC began the Annual University of Scranton Psychology Conference.

Along with the title of Local Chapter of the Year, the APS presented the Scranton Chapter with a $250 cash award to be used toward academic and social activities.

Coffee Bar Opens at Library

There's an interesting new addition to the 400,000-volume Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Memorial Library. It isn't a book, or even a collection of books.

It's a coffee bar.

With the 27 August opening of the coffee bar, located in the Pro Deo Room on the Library's first floor, The University of Scranton joins the ranks of universities such as Duke, Johns Hopkins, Georgetown and Columbia who have added java to their libraries' offerings.

"The coffee bar helps to make the Library a friendlier environment... a place where students can feel comfortable to study," said Charles Kratz, Weinberg Library Director. "Faculty, staff and other members of the community are also invited to enjoy the food, beverages and ambiance."

The menu includes specialty coffees and teas, jumbo muffins and cookies, cinnamon buns and scones. Different types of Java City coffee available include Cappuccino, Cafe Latte, Café Au Lait, Café White Mocha, Café Mocha, Steamer, Espresso, Caramel Macchiato, Almond Roca Latte and Tuxedo.

Tea drinkers will appreciate a line of eight "Tazo" teas, ranging from herbal teas to Earl Grey. "Chai" tea, a steamed black tea with milk, ginger and vanilla, is also available.

The coffee bar is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Food and beverages are provided by ARA. For information, call the Weinberg Memorial Library at 941-7526.

Women's Center Named, New Director Announced

The University recently renamed its campus women's center in honor of M. Jane Kopas, OSF, Ph.D., a long-tenured professor who served as the center's first director.

At a ceremony held on campus, the women's center was renamed the Jane Kopas, OSF, Ph.D., Women's Center. The renaming recognizes the many contributions that Sr. Kopas has made to the center, as well as to both the University's women's studies program and the committee on the status of women. Sr. Kopas, a professor of theology and religious studies, began her career at the University in 1978 and retired from the University this year.

Founded in 1994 to provide a forum for exploring women's issues, the center sponsors programs to address women's health and other issues, including gender equality and justice. The center also provides access to a library and other resources that promote awareness of women's issues.

The newly appointed Director of the Kopas Women's Center, Elizabeth Randol, Ph.D., was also introduced during the dedication ceremony.

"Dr. Randol brings great vision and energy with her," said Virginia Schwalm, Ph.D., Dean of Student Development. "She has significant experience with issues of gender, equality and social justice."

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Dr. Randol currently resides in Scranton. Prior to her current position, Dr. Randol was an adjunct faculty member of the University's philosophy department. She has also taught at Binghamton University (SUNY), where she earned her doctorate in Philosophy. She earned her bachelor's degree from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., and her master's degree from North Carolina State University.

Lisa Scottoline to Receive Distinguished Author Award

The Friends of the Weinberg Memorial Library will host a book-signing and "Meet the Author" reception for best-selling author Lisa Scottoline on Saturday, 15 September. Ms. Scottoline will be in Scranton to receive the 2001 Distinguished Author Award from the Friends of the Weinberg Memorial Library.

A book-signing for Ms. Scottoline is planned from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the University Book Store, Hyland Hall. The book-signing is free of charge and open to the public. Copies of Ms. Scottoline's recent novels will be available for sale.

The "Meet the Author" reception, which will begin at 5 p.m. in Eagen Auditorium of the Gunster Memorial Student Center, will be followed by the presentation of the Distinguished Author Award. Tickets required to attend this event may be purchased by contacting Patricia DeSarno at 941-7816 or desarnop2@scranton.edu. Tickets are $50 per person ($45 for Friends of the Library members) $25 of which is tax deductible. Student tickets are $25 ($20 for Friends student members). The reception will include cocktails, light fare and desserts.

The author of eight critically acclaimed thrillers, Ms. Scottoline's books include The New York Times best sellers Moment of Truth and Mistaken Identity. Ms. Scottoline's first book, Everywhere That Mary Went, was nominated for the 1994 Edgar Award.

Sprinkler Systems Installed in Nine Residence Halls

Summer is a time for sprinklers, no question about it. This summer, it was a time for indoor sprinklers at the University.

Full fire-sprinkler systems were installed in Redington, Gavigan, McCormick, Gannon and Lavis halls during the summer. Full fire-sprinkler systems were also installed in McGowan, Blair, Gonzaga and Luzerne houses.

This was the first set of installations completed as part of a multi-million dollar program to install sprinklers in University housing. The five-year plan has been accelerated to three years. The next set of buildings slated for sprinkler installation includes Nevils and Driscoll halls. Sprinklers will be installed in the University's off-campus housing thereafter.

Among the 32 conferences held during the summer was the inaugural class of the Pennsylvania Victim Assistance Academy.

The University of Scranton doesn't shut down during the summer months. The summer of 2001 is a case in point.

Conferences, youth programs and personal-enrichment classes, as well as for-credit courses offered at both the undergraduate and graduate level, were held throughout the summer.

In the area of undergraduate studies, about 900 students from 19 universities took courses at the University during the summer session. Computer training and computer certificate programs were popular areas of study for students enrolled through the University's Center for Continuing Education.

Students in 6th through 12th grades were commonly seen on campus during the summer, as they participated in arts-based enrichment programs offered by the University. Programs included "Creative Me" for 4th, 5th and 6th grade students;

Time Travelers for high-achieving 6th through 8th grade students; Nurse Camp for 6th through 8th grade students; Arts Alive for 9th through 12th grades students; and the High School Scholars Program, which allows sophomore and junior high school students with a B+ or better grade-point average to take college-level courses. The National Youth Sports Program was also held.

Among the 32 conferences held during the summer was the inaugural class of the Pennsylvania Victim Assistance Academy. More than 40 victim advocates from 24 counties gathered at the University for a six-day, university-level course of study to broaden their understanding of victimization, victimology and victims' rights.

The Academy is a partnership between the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency (PCCD) and The University of Scranton. Pennsylvania is one of five states chosen by the U.S. Department of Justice to develop an Academy, modeled after the National Victim Assistance Academy.

Other conferences held at the University during the summer included the Diocese of Scranton Youth Rally, the Catholic Charismatic Conference, the summer academy for Diocese of Scranton administrators and the National Railroad Historical Society Conference.

An Evening of Ellington

On Saturday, 22 September, the University will host "An Evening of Ellington," featuring The Loren Schoenberg Band. The free concert, open to the general public, begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Houlihan-McLean Center, located on the corner of Mulberry Street and Jefferson Avenue. At 6:30 p.m., Loren Schoenberg, renowned jazz artist and jazz historian, will conduct a pre-concert "Music Talk."

Mr. Schoenberg has played and spoken at The White House with President and Mrs. Clinton. He has also performed with Wynton Marsalis, Marian McPartland, Dr. Billy Taylor, and Dr. David Barker in an event internationally televised by VH-1. He has produced shows at Carnegie Hall, including tributes to Benny Goodman and Charlie Parker. He is a member of the faculties of the Manhattan School of Music, The New School and the Juilliard Institute for Jazz Studies. He also serves on the faculty for the Jazz at Lincoln Center Essentially Ellington Band Director's Academy.

In addition to performing and lecturing, Mr. Schoenberg has been active on radio as a host, writer, producer and critic. He served as an advisor to the Ken Burns' documentary "Jazz," and has lectured throughout the world. Mr. Schoenberg has also written pieces for the New York Times, and chapters in books such as The Oxford Companion to Jazz and The Masters of the Jazz Saxophone. He received the 1995 Grammy Award for Best Album Notes, in conjunction with Dan Morgenstern.

Born in New Jersey in 1958, he began playing the tenor saxophone in Eddie Durham's quartet during his college years at the Manhattan School of Music. He formed his big band in New York City in 1980.

In 1993, Mr. Schoenberg served as the musical director for the International Duke Ellington Conference. He has conducted The American Jazz Orchestra, The Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra, and The Smithsonian Jazz Masterworks Orchestra. His own band has released a number of albums and performed throughout the world in many of the most respected jazz venues.

Vincent Carilli, Ph.D., Named V.P. For Student Affairs

Vincent Carilli, Ph.D., has been named Vice President for Student Affairs at the University.

"An outgoing, energetic and creative administrator, Dr. Carilli has received a host of awards for his work in student affairs," said University President Joseph M. McShane, S.J. "He brings to his new position a wealth of experience and expertise in a wide variety of areas, especially student development, student leadership and diversity."

Dr. Carilli oversees the offices of Career Services, Student Health Services, Residence Life, the Counseling Center, the Campus Women's Center, the Commuter and Off-Campus Affairs Office, Student Activities and Intercollegiate Athletics.

Dr. Carilli previously served as the dean of students at the University of Tennessee, responsible for the management of 11 departments concerning many facets of student life. He began his service at the University of Tennessee in 1998 as the associate dean of students. He became the dean of students in 2000.

11th Muskie Fellow Begins MBA Studies

Among the University's incoming graduate students is Leila Nabiyeva, Azerbaijan. She is the 11th student from four former Soviet Union republics to study business in the University's MBA program, supported through the Edmund S. Muskie/Freedom Support Graduate Fellowship Program, which was established 10 years ago to encourage economic growth in 15 republics that formerly made up the Soviet Union.

Just over 500 Muskie Fellows will study in the United States this year, including three at the University.

In order for an institution to be able to enroll Muskie Fellows, the academic programs in the students' areas of specialization must have the highest accreditation. The MBA program at the University's Kania School of Management is accredited by the rigorous standards of AACSB-International, the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

Muskie Fellowships are based on academic excellence, proficiency in English, professional aptitude and leadership potential. Upon completion of the fellowship, students will return to their home countries for at least two years to apply what they have learned.

Other Muskie Fellows in the University's MBA program are Ilgar Umudov, Azerbaijan and Tatyana Nikiforova, Uzbekistan.

From 1995 to 1998, Dr. Carilli served as the assistant director of student development at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

He was awarded the Administrator of the Year Award at the University of Tennessee this year and the Outstanding Student Affairs Staff Member Award at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale in 1997.

A native of New York City, Dr. Carilli earned his bachelor's degree in secondary education from East Stroudsburg University in 1988. He earned a master's degree in student affairs in higher education administration from Kutztown State University and a doctorate in higher education administration from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

He is a member of the American College Personnel Association, the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators and the National Education Association.

Liturgical Musicians' Reunion to be held 29 - 30 September

A major event is being planned for alumni who have participated as liturgical musicians at the University. A reunion will be held 29 - 30 September to mark the 25th anniversary of the University's Campus Music Ministry.

Over 200 Music Ministry alumni are expected to gather for the event, which will include a barbecue, a brunch, and, of course, a liturgy. The liturgical celebration will be held in the Houlihan-McLean Center, the music for which will be conducted by present and past directors of liturgical music: William Mulligan, Richard Shaw, Kathy Kanavy and Sister Joan Roccasalvo.

Renowned Economist to Speak at Scranton

One of the leading economists in the United States, Robert J. Shiller, Ph.D., will present the University's 16th annual Henry George Lecture. He will discuss "Progress, Poverty and the Digital Age" on 13 September at 7:30 p.m. in Eagen Auditorium of the Gunster Memorial Student Center.

Dr. Shiller will also speak to area business leaders at the University's President's Breakfast at 8 a.m. in the Executive Center, fifth floor, Brennan Hall. He will present "Irrational Exuberance and the Stock Market." Co-sponsored by PNC Bank, the President's Breakfast Series periodically brings together members of the business community to hear guest speakers address topics of regional, national and international interest.

In his latest book, Irrational Exuberance, Dr. Shiller thoroughly examines the enthusiasm driving the stock market highs, endorsing what Alan Greenspan termed as the market's "irrational exuberance." Dr. Shiller believes the market's high is more representative of the optimism of millions encouraged by Wall Street analysts rather than the realistic judgements of rational experts. His book became a New York Times non-fiction best seller, forewarning of the potential for poorer market performance and offering alternative investment options.

"A superb macroeconomist, Dr. Shiller has done pioneering work in the areas of stock market volatility and market psychology, large-scale risk management and income inequality," said Satyajit Ghosh,

Ph.D., Professor of Economics/Finance and Department Chairperson. "The Henry George Lecture at the University will once again provide Northeastern Pennsylvania a rare opportunity to listen to a true scholar in economics."

An expert in market fluctuations, Dr. Shiller is the Stanley B. Resor Professor of Economics and a faculty researcher for the Cowles Foundation for Research in Economics at Yale University.

Dr. Shiller has written extensively on financial markets, behavioral economics, macroeconomics, real estate and statistical methods, as well as on public attitudes, opinions and moral judgements regarding markets. He is a research associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research, a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a member of the Academic Advisory Panel for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The Henry George Lecture Series is the pre-eminent public lecture series in economics in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Three of the previous speakers - Amartya Sen, Robert Solow and Robert E. Lucas, Jr. - have subsequently won the Nobel Prize in Economics.

Funded by a grant from the Robert Schalkenbach Foundation, the lecture is presented to the public free of charge. The Economics/Finance Department at the University and the campus chapter of Omicron Delta Epsilon host the Henry George Lecture, which honors the 19th century American economist and social reformer.

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Even though the Royals are not likely to replace two-time all-American Joe Fent '01, head coach John Hopkins returns a veteran squad that will look to improve upon last fall's 13th-place showing at the NCAA Mid-East regional meet.

Three veterans – sophomores Matt Hohmann (Long Valley, N.J.) and William Peoples (Medford, N.J.) and junior captain Matt Reichlen (Friendsville) – will compete for the number one spot in the lineup. Sophomore John Barlow (Springfield) came on strong at the end of last season and should move up in the line-up.

Also expected to challenge for a berth in the lineup are senior Jeff Passetti (Glen Lyon), junior Josh Stewart (Crofton, Md.), sophomore Gavin Keogh (Palmertown, Ireland) and freshmen Andrew Reinold (Aberdeen, N.J.), Jonathan Santarelli (Moscow) and Matt Zehner (Dunmore).

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

The Lady Royals return 15 letter-winners from a team that wrapped up the 2000 season with an eighth-place showing at the highly-regarded NCAA Mid-East regional meet.

Even though Scranton does not have a clear-cut number one runner, veteran head coach John Hopkins feels that there are at least four runners who have the ability to claim the top spot in the lineup, including senior tri-captain Alexandra Reiher (West Milford, N.J.) who hit her stride at the MAC championships by finishing 10th overall.

Fellow seniors and tri-captains Christine Baran (Nanticoke) and Sarah Kenehan (Clarks Summit) should push Reiher throughout the season, while junior Colleen Kearns' (Demarest, N.J.) time of 21:16 at the NCAA regional meet was more than 30 seconds faster than her time at the beginning of the season.

Sophomore Tiffany Leventhal (Honesdale) is expected to lead the next tier of runners after picking up valuable experience by competing in both the MAC and NCAA regional meets last fall. Seniors Jeni Curran (Miller Place, N.Y.) and Lauren Ueland (Mineola, N.Y.) and junior Courtney Dool (Horsham) should be right on Leventhal's heels throughout much of the season.

FIELD HOCKEY

The Lady Royals will look to return to familiar territory during the upcoming 2001 season.

Scranton returns 18 letter-winners from a team that posted its fifth straight winning season, but three consecutive league losses prevented Scranton from advancing to the Freedom Conference playoffs for only the second time in the last five years.

The Lady Royals shouldn't have any problems putting the ball in the net. Senior Laura Boersig (Morrisville) earned first-team all-NFHCA South Atlantic regional honors after leading Scranton in scoring with 25 total points. She will get plenty of help from juniors Carrie Moran (Glen Head, N.Y.) and Maureen Bole (Westchester).

Brewer has some holes to fill at midfield, but returning starter Patricia Donaghy (Mohegan Lake, N.Y.) should ease the burden. A number of veterans, many of whom saw considerable playing time last year, will compete for playing time, including junior Meghan Blair (Lake Peekskill, N.Y.) and sophomores Katie Szczepanski (Elizabethtown), Victoria Crocco (Orange, Conn.) and Liz Thomas (Bloomsburg).

Sophomore Kim Reynolds (Larchmont, N.Y.) will take over the starting goalkeeper duties after seeing action in four games and starting twice last fall. Junior Jillian Varley (Suffield, Conn.) returns after starting all 19 matches a year ago and being a key figure in a Lady Royal defensive unit that shut out four opponents. Also expected to make a strong pitch for playing time on defense are senior Kristy Petty (Clarks Summit) junior Lauren LiCalzi (Garden City, N.J.) and sophomore Leah Hegstrom (Clinton, N.J.).

MEN'S SOCCER

Matt Pivrotto is a firm believer in "waste not, want not."

Last fall, in his second season as head coach, he watched his Royals squeeze out eight victories with an offense that produced only 20 goals in 18 matches.

Pivrotto is not expected to veer too far away from last year's successful formula, which helped Scranton to its first Freedom Conference post-season tournament appearance since 1998. He'll build the team around seniors Eric Kunzinger (Smithtown, N.Y.) and Trevor Pericas (Alcudia, Spain) both of whom were a major part of a Royal defensive unit that shut out five opponents last year.

At midfield, sophomore Ryan O'Neill (Bensalem) appears to be the leading candidate in the middle after finishing tied for third on the team in scoring. Pivrotto has indicated that the other positions are wide open, with veteran Patrick Brennan (WilliamSPORT) as a top candidate.

Up front at forward, sophomore Chris Hundersmarck (Dover Plains, N.Y.) and junior Jeremy Basedow (Flemington, N.J.) are expected to be even more productive this year after combining for 23 total points and three game-winning goals last fall. Senior Chris Poli (Blue Bell) will also see plenty of playing time after finishing fifth on the team in scoring last year.

VOLLEYBALL

The times, they are a-changing – especially in the sport of volleyball.

Rally scoring will replace the traditional sideout format for the upcoming 2001 season, with each play now resulting in a point. Games will now be decided by the first team to reach 30 points with a two-point advantage.

For seventh-year head coach Kristin Maile, the times will also be a-changing. She bids farewell to six seniors who were instrumental in leading Scranton to a four-year record of 105-56 (.652).

The return of sophomore Jennifer Toth (Catasauqua) at middle blocker should ease the heavy graduation losses. Toth hit a respectable .257 and tied for the team-lead in blocks to earn second-team all-Freedom Conference honors.

Steadily improving junior setter Shannon Loberg (Gulph Mills) will also ease some of Maile's concerns. She took over the position midway through last season and averaged nearly 11 set assists per game. Maile will also count on senior captain and right-side hitter Christine Fontaine (Norristown), a three-year letter-winner, to provide valuable experience and leadership, as will junior defensive specialist Suzanne Britt (Abingdon).

Other key veterans whose playing time is expected to increase this year include sophomores Mary Bertels (Lower Gwynedd), Jillian Federico (Islip, N.Y.), Krista Hylinski (Norristown), Amanda Soares (Paramus, N.J.) and Bridget Troxell (Andreas).

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Joe Bochicchio knows better than most that defense does, indeed, win championships.

He watched his women's soccer team win Freedom Conference titles and advance to the NCAA Division III championships the past two seasons with a smothering defense that held opponents to just 24 goals in 45 matches.

That trend is expected to continue during the upcoming 2001 season, due to the return of record-setting goalkeeper Meghan Quinlan (Glen Rock, N.J.), a three-time NSCAA all-regional selection, and senior defenders Michelle Fogarty (Staten Island, N.Y.), a first-team all-Freedom Conference selection, and Kim Lanigan (East Islip, N.Y.), a second-team all-league pick, to name just a few. Bochicchio is hoping the Royals' ability to shut down the opposition can offset the losses of forwards Amy Connolly '01, the second all-time leading scorer in Scranton history, and Nicole Bayman '01, a second-team NSCAA all-American, to graduation.

Bochicchio is confident that returning veterans Robyn Mason (Penfield, N.Y.) and Allison DeVarso (Malverne, N.Y.) are capable of stepping in and taking up the slack created by the loss of Connolly and Bayman. A number of incoming freshmen are expected to challenge for playing time.

Sophomore Colleen Murphy (Langhorne) a first-team all-Freedom Conference selection, junior Jackie Frisina (Smithtown, N.Y.), and senior Britt Cuminskey (Sparta, N.J.) form the nucleus at midfield. Frisina, a second-team all-conference pick, finished third on the team in scoring last fall, while sophomore Elizabeth O'Connor (Exton) will vie for a starting berth. Meghan Calpin (West Pittston) a transfer from the University of Pittsburgh, will challenge for a starting berth at either forward or midfield.

Joining Quinlan, Fogarty and Lanigan in the back will be sophomore Colleen O'Connor (Aston) along with a number of freshmen, which should continue Scranton's tradition of producing solid defensive teams.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Maintaining the status quo would sit just fine with Jane Johnson.

She takes over a women's tennis program this fall that has posted 13 straight winning seasons. Her goal of maintaining Scranton's winning ways will be enhanced by the return of five letter-winners who were instrumental in leading the team to a 12-2 overall record last year.

Headlining the list of returnees is junior Erin Michalisin (Melville, N.Y.) who played the number one position in the Lady Royals' lineup for the past two seasons and earned all-Freedom Conference honors last fall.

Johnson's biggest concerns will be to find replacements for Colleen Natrass and Danielle Schneider, both of whom combined for 80 career victories.

Sophomore Katie King (Philadelphia) will slide into the number four spot after posting a solid 10-3 record last fall. The fifth and sixth singles spots will be a hotly contested affair between sophomore Allison Hoffinan (Pound Ridge, N.Y.) and senior Suzanne Spinelli (Scranton).

In doubles, Johnson may try a number of different combinations on a match-by-match basis as the season progresses.

University of Success Graduates Begin College Studies

Nine high school students from a University of Scranton-sponsored mentoring and development program have begun college studies this fall – six of them at the University.

These students are the first full graduating class of the University of Success, a program that encourages students of average academic potential to complete high school and gain entry into a college or university.

In 2000, the University of Success gained national recognition when the Hearst Foundation awarded a $100,000 endowment to The University of Scranton to provide scholarship funding for University of Success students to continue their education at the University.

The University of Success provides academic, social and cultural opportunities to help students who are typically under-represented in higher education. Students enter the program in seventh grade and continue until their high school graduation.

"This program has given me the confidence to pursue my dream to be a journalist," said University of Success graduate JoAnn Dongchane.

Of Thai and Laotian descent, Dongchane graduated from Scranton High School and will pursue a degree in communications at the University.

"This program helped me remain focused on my goals," Ms. Dongchane added.

"Everyone in this program is very supportive. We have the same outlook and goals."

Her fellow University of Success classmates echoed her sentiments.

"They encourage you to keep going," said Maritza Guzman, a graduate of West Scranton High School. "They encourage you to perform, to do your best."

When fellow classmate Dan Modrow of Forty Fort suffered an injury in the 9th grade that ended his hopes for a wrestling scholarship, he found support from his University of Success peers and program staff.

"They told me that my future was in college, in becoming a teacher. That's what is important," said Mr. Modrow, a Wyoming Valley West graduate who began studies at the University this fall to become a special education teacher.

Other 2001 University of Success graduates are Tony Bardzilouskas, Gouldsboro, North Pocono High School; Desiree Esgro, Carbondale, Lakeland High School; Priscilla Faria, Clarks Summit, Abington Heights High School; Logan McCloe, Scranton, Scranton High School; and Terrence Walton, Peckville, Valley View High School.

Each year a new group of students are selected for the University of Success program. They begin the program during the summer between their seventh and eighth grades with a two-week stay on the University's campus. The students then meet monthly throughout their high school years.

Agreement Renewed between Scranton/Slovakia universities

A five-year-old agreement between The University of Scranton and Trnavska Univerzita in Trnava, Slovakia, has been renewed for an additional three years, providing further opportunities for teacher and student exchanges, as well as for teaching, scholarship and research. This new agreement encourages expanded activities across all academic disciplines at both universities to advance globalization efforts in the 21st century.

J.A. Panuska, S.J., President Emeritus of the University, traveled to Slovakia in May to sign the renewal to the original agreement he helped forge in 1995. His efforts enabled the development of a four-year health-management education partnership between both universities.

Earlier this year, four faculty members from Trnavska Univerzita visited The University of Scranton and other parts of the U.S. as part of the exchange program. This month, Daniel West, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Health Administration and Human Resources, will travel to Trnavska Univerzita to chair an accreditation committee and site-visit team whose members include representatives from universities in France, Germany and Italy.

According to Dr. West, the accreditation process will take a highly unusual approach of applying North American and Western European accreditation standards to an institute of higher learning in Eastern Europe.

Professor JUDr. Peter Blaho, CSC., Rector of Trnavska Univerzita, and J. A. Panuska, S.J., President Emeritus of The University of Scranton, renew an agreement between the two universities.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Thomas E. Baker, Associate Professor, Sociology and Criminal Justice, had two articles published in a recent issue of Law and Order: "Burglary Mapping: 2001 Cyberspace Odyssey" and "Hunting Serial Murderers: Understanding and Apprehending America's Most Dangerous Criminals."

John R. Conway, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Biology, had his reviews of three books, Ears, Eyes and Nose, in the BodyWorks Series, published in the July/August issue of Science Books & Films (Vol 37, No. 4: 174).

Frank X.J. Homer, Ph.D., Professor of History and Director of the Pre-Law Advisory Program, served as a guest faculty member in a Law School Preparation Institute held at the University of Texas Pan American (UTPA) in Edinburg, Texas, 13 – 16 August. Dr. Homer was invited to conduct classes dealing with preparation for the LSAT, a subject on which he has conducted numerous workshops over the past two decades at The University of Scranton and elsewhere. The Institute at UTPA is part of a program established by the University of Texas system to increase the number of students from predominantly minority campuses applying to law school. Dr. Homer also participated, along with several other veteran pre-law advisors, in a session on "Pre-Law Advising and the Political Scientist" at the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association on 29 August in San Francisco, Calif.

William J. Parente, Ph. D., Professor of Political Science, delivered a paper on the "Relationship of University Endowments and Minority Enrollments" at the 20th Annual Meeting of the Conference on Multicultural Affairs of the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities, St. Peter's College, Jersey City, N.J., on 15 June.

Michael Simmons, Study Abroad Advisor at the University, will be beginning his fourth and final year as a member of the National Advisory Board of Arcadia University's Center for Education Abroad (formerly Beaver College). Since becoming a member of the board, Mr. Simmons has traveled to Scotland and Italy to evaluate study-abroad programs sponsored by Arcadia University.

Robert P. Sadowski, Ph.D., Professor of Communication, has elected to return to full-time teaching and research after serving as department chair for nearly 12 years. He will be a Visiting Professor in the Department of Communication at The University of Michigan-Flint for the 2001-2002 academic year.

Joe Vinson, Ph.D., Professor of Chemistry, had the paper, "Determination of Quantity and Quality of Polyphenol Antioxidants in Foods and Beverages," published in Volume 335 of Methods in Enzymology. Co-authors are John Proch, Clarks Green, and Pratima Bose, Justus.

Margarete Zalon, Ph.D., Professor of Nursing, participated in a radio talk show program and was interviewed by the Philadelphia Inquirer on the nursing shortage. Dr. Zalon also spoke at the Nurse Millennium March held in Philadelphia in May, and gave a presentation entitled "Professionally Speaking: Protecting and Enhancing Your Practice" at Nursing Spectrum's Career Expo.

Professor Receives Third Fulbright Fellowship

Linda Ledford-Miller, Ph.D., Professor of Foreign Languages and Literatures, has received her third Fulbright Fellowship, this one to teach in Mozambique, Africa. In 1990, she received a Senior Fulbright Fellowship to lecture on comparative literature at San Carlos University in Guatemala City, Guatemala. She received her first Fulbright Fellowship for graduate study and research to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, as a graduate student in 1979.

"To receive one Fulbright Fellowship is quite an honor," said Dr. Ledford-Miller. "To receive three is extraordinary good fortune."

"The Fulbright program enables one person to educate others about a culture and people from a part of the world that they would have not noticed otherwise," said Dr. Ledford Miller. "The ripple effect is astonishing. What I learn, I will bring back and share with my students and colleagues."

Dr. Ledford-Miller will spend 12 months teaching American literature at the Eduardo Mondlane University in Maputo, Mozambique. She will also serve as a consultant on curricular reform for British and American literature.

A member of the University's Foreign Languages and Literatures Department since 1985, Dr. Ledford-Miller teaches Spanish and Portuguese language and literature classes, as well as classes in modern and contemporary prose of the Americas.
