

Undecided Major

Still deciding on a major? That's OK! About 20% of the entering UMM class each year are deciding students; you are not alone!

Choosing a major is one of those decisions that come to you in your own way; it is based on your personal interests, goals, and life experiences. Some students declare their major and change their minds several times before making a final choice. Others prefer to take time to explore options before declaring. Regardless, there is no right or wrong way to choose a major. If you are still deciding which path to take, your academic adviser will help you find the information you need to make your decision.

Deciding on a Major: How to Get Started

This step-by-step guide will help you discover more about yourself, your interests and abilities, and how it relates to majors and potential career paths. It is a self-paced easy process that is free!

Each step will guide you through a series of questions and activities that will help you refine and focus your academic interests toward a major. We hope that you will use this information as you work with your academic adviser to create your academic plan at UMM.

- Step 1 Self Assessment & Discovery
- Step 2 Investigate & Gather Information
- Step 3 Narrowing Choices
- Step 4 Evaluate & Declare your major

Each step will help you learn more about yourself and take you closer to deciding what major is right for you. By completing the activities in this online workbook you will have a written portfolio of your interests and goals, as well as, extensive knowledge on various majors to assist you in finding your desired career path. We recommend that you print this workbook and bring it with you when you meet with your academic adviser.

Ready to get started?